Chicken 'Boro' Parmo $28

The parmo was created by Nicos Harris, a Greek American navy chef. He was wounded off the coast of France, and brought to the United Kingdom to be treated at what is now James Cook University Hospital, Middlesbrough. He stayed in Middlesbrough and opened a restaurant, The American Grill, on Linthorpe Road, where he created the parmo in 1958. The parmo is often dubbed the 'national dish of Teesside' and is one of the most popular dishes in the area.

Our parmo is made in the traditional way, with crumbed chicken schnitzel topped with rich bechamel sauce and tasty cheese. We're from Teesside, so we know exactly how this dish should taste. Enjoy.

Served with chunky chips and wholegrain mustard slaw.
